Authors - Notizie sugli autori

Rocco Agrifoglio, Ph.D., is assistant professor of Organization at the "Parthenope" University (Naples, Italy). He has earned his Ph.D. in Management and Business Administration from the same University and he has also been a visiting scholar at University of Westminster (London, UK) and University of Castilla-La Mancha (Ciudad Real, ES).

Roberto Albano is associate professor at the Department of Cultures, Politics and Society - University of Turin, where he teaches Sociology and Social Research. He received his Ph.D. in Sociology at the University of Milan. His research interests include: cultural change in European countries, with a special focus on work values, the relationships between organizational regulation and technological changes, work-life-balance. He is member of the Scientific Committee of MU.S.I.C. – Observatory on social change and cultural innovation. E-mail: roberto.albano@unito.it.

Gilda Antonelli (BSc, PhD) is a professor of Organizational Design and Human Resources Management at the Law, Economics, Management and Quantitative Methods Department of University of Sannio, Italy. Her research focuses on innovation at different level (team, organization and network) and she studies both the role of the personal characteristics, which enable innovation and structural organizational features, and the organizational tools to improve and design identity policies. She is now focused on studying organizational change driven by individuals and teams. She is a member of the European Group of Organizational Studies, the Academy of Management and Italian Organizational Studies Association. E-mail: gilda.antonelli@unisannio.it

Davide Bizjak, PhD, is research fellow in Organization Studies at the University of Naples Federico II, and he is a former Research Trainee at the University of Essex, UK. His primary research interests lie in the areas of Arts Organisations, Organisational Identity, and Arts Management. He has been awarded several prizes and research grants, including Best Reviewer at the EURAM Conference – SIG 01 (Paris 2016). He actively serves as a reviewer for several international journals and conferences. He has published extensively on the abovementioned areas both refereed international journals and edited volumes. He is member of the puntOorg International Research Network. E-mail: davbiz@unina.it Americo Cicchetti is full professor at the Department of Management Studies - Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, where he teaches Organization Theory and Human Resource Management. He received his Ph.D. in Management at the University of Bologna in 1998. His research interests include: organizational design and its implications for human resource management with a special focus on hospitals and other healthcare organizations. He is Director of Altems, Graduate School of Health Economics and Management at Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore. E-mail: americo.cicchetti@unicatt.it.

DOI: 10.3280/SO2018-002011

Ylenia Curzi is assistant professor at the Marco Biagi Department of Economics of the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, where she teaches Business Organization and International HRM. She received her Ph.D. at the University of Udine. She was visiting scholar at Cardiff Business School (Wales, UK) in 2009. Her research interests include the relationships between organizational regulation and technological changes, organization and wellbeing at work, performance management systems, work-life-balance. Email: ylenia.curzi@unimore.it.

Edoardo Della Torre is associate professor at the Department of Management, Economics and Quantitative Methods of the University of Bergamo (Italy), where he teaches Organizational Theory and Design, and affiliate professor at the IESEG School of Management of the Catholic University of Lille (France). He received his Ph.D. in Labor Studies from the University of Milan. His areas of research include the management of human capital, the development of new organizational forms, the complementarities between collective and individual dimensions of employment relationships. Email: edoardo.dellatorre@unibg.it

Stefano Di Lauro is a PhD candidate in Management at the University of Naples Federico II (Italy), studying Organizational Identity and Social media. He has an extensive international work experience in communication, marketing and social media marketing fields. E-mail: stefano.dilauro@gmail.com

Guglielmo Faldetta has a PhD in Business Management (University of Catania, Italy) and is currently associate professor of Organization and Human Resource Management (Kore University of Enna, Italy). His research focuses on reciprocity, gift-giving, social responsibility, employment relationships. His works have been published on journals such as the Journal of Business Ethics, the Journal of Managerial Psychology and Culture and Organization.

Maria Ferrara is full professor of Organization, Human Resource Management and Organizational Behavior at the "Parthenope" University of Naples (Italy), where she is the coordinator of the PhD in Governance, Management and Economics. Her main research interests are diversity management, work-life balance, error reporting and job insecurity.

Valentina Iacopino, PhD, is postdoctoral researcher in Organization Studies and Human Resource Management at the Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Department of Management. Her research interests and publications focus on the adoption processes of innovations in health care at institutional, organizational and professional level. In her studies, she applies social network analysis techniques to understand the role of interorganizational and professional networks in the process of adoption and diffusion of medical technologies and organizational learning. E-mail: valentina.iacopino@unicatt.it.

Giovanna Lo Nigro, Ph.D. in Production Engineering at the University of Palermo, is associate professor in the field of Business and Management Engineering, at the University of Palermo where she teaches Corporate Finance and Business Economics. Her research interests lie at the crossroad between corporate strategy and corporate finance with a focus on the relationship between capital structure and firm performance. She is also interested in strategic decision making under uncertainty with a behavioural perspective and in supply chain finance decisions. E-mail: giovanna.lonigro@unipa.it.

Marcello Martinez is full professor of Organization Studies at Università della Campania Luigi Vanvitelli, where he is the Coordinator of the Faculty Board of the PhD course in Entrepreneurship and Innovation. He is President of ASSIOA – Association of Italian Organization Studies Academics. He is member of many scientific and professional associations such as AIDP –Italian Association of Human Resources Management, AIDEA – Accademia Italiana di Economia Aziendale. E-mail: marcello.martinez@unicampania.it Daniele Mascia (PhD) is associate professor of Organization and Human Resource Management at the University of Bologna. His research interests include the administration and management of healthcare organizations, the study of inter-personal and inter-organizational networks, and the analysis of learning dynamics in the context of medical innovation. Daniele's work has been published in leading international journals and honoured with several awards. E-mail: d.mascia@unibo.it.

Concetta Metallo, Ph.D., is associate professor of Organization and Information Systems at "Parthenope" University (Naples, Italy). Her research interests concern flexible work arrangements (e.g., contingent work, telecommuting, virtual work groups), as well as relationship between technology adoption and organizational behaviour. E-mail: metallo@uniparthenope.it

Alessandro Mongili is a researcher at the Department of Philosophy, Sociology, Pedagogy and Applied Psychology of the University of Padua, where he teaches Sociology, and Technoscience and Modernization Processes. He received his Doctorate at the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales in Paris. His research interests include Innovation in the Global South and in other marginalised areas, Information Infrastructures Studies, and Minority languages standardization and development. He is a member of the Padova Science, Technology, and Innovation Studies, Pa.S.T.I.S. E-mail alessandro.mongili@unipd.it

Luigi Moschera, Ph.D. in Business Administration at University of Naples "Federico II", is Full Professor of Organization Studies at University of Naples Parthenope - Department of Management and Economics. He teaches Business Organization, Inter-firm Network Design and Human Resource Management. His most recent research focuses on contingent/alternative employment arrangements and their implications for employees' attitudes, well-being and behaviour. He is author of several publications on organizational change in the temporary work agency sector in Italy and Europe. E-mail: moschera@uniparthenope.it

Tania Parisi, Ph.D. in Applied Sociology and Methodology of social research, is research fellow at the Department of Cultures, Politics and Society of the University of Turin. Her interests of research focus on social innovation and mobile workers. E-mail: tania.parisi@unito.it

Laura Lucia Parolin, PhD in Information System and Organization at the University of Trento, is assistant professor in Organizational Communication at the University of Southern Denmark. She is interested in the role of artifacts and materiality in organizing, knowing and learning processes. She is a scholar who uses Science and Technology Studies (STS) and, specifically, Actor-Network Theory (ANT), to account for technology as well as materiality in work and organizational practices. E-mail: lauralucia.parolin@sdu.dk

Mario Pezzillo Iacono is an associate professor of Organization Studies, Department of Economics - University of Campania Luigi Vanvitelli - where he currently teaches Human Resource Management and Organizational Design. He received his Ph.D. in Organization Design and Human Resource Management at the University of Molise). His research interests include: knowledge management and innovation, organizational control in private and public sectors; human resource management and organizational diversity/identity. He is the author of about 80 publications (monographs, journal articles and book chapters).

E-mail: mario.pezzilloiacono@unicampania.it

Luigi Maria Sicca is full professor of Organization and HR Management at University of Naples Federico II, where is board member of both SInAPSi Centre and University Ombudsman. He leads the puntOorg International Research Network (www.puntoorg.net/en). Luigi Maria is member of ASSIOA and AIDEA and he leads (together with Luca Zan) the GSA "Management, Arts and Cultures". Since the mid-1990s he has fostered the critical management approach focusing on listening ability, managerial rhetoric and organizational inclusion in the empirical fields of opera houses, theatres, festivals, orchestras, and research institutes. E-mail: lumsicca@unina.it

Luca Solari is full professor at the Department of Social and Political Sciences of the University of Milan , where he teaches Human resources and HR Analytics and directs the MSc in Management of Human Resources and Labour Studies. He received his Ph.D. from Bocconi University. His current research interests include the relationships between individual freedom and organizational structure and processes, the evolution of organizations and work, the interplay between technology and organization. E-mail: luca.solari@unimi.it

Lia Tirabeni, PhD in Sociology, is research fellow at the Department of Cultures, Politics, and Society (University of Turin). She is adjunct professor of Business Organization at the Department of Management (University of Turin) and adjunct professor of Smart Factory and Organizational Dynamics at the Department of Psychology (University of Turin). She has been visiting research fellow at the Department of Management Science & Technology, AUEB, (Athens). Her research mainly concerns organization studies. She is particularly interested in the ways technology affects work practices and organizations, and in the individual interaction with technological artifacts. E-mail: lia.tirabeni@unito.it

Andrea Tomo is adjunct professor of Organization Studies at the Department of Economics, Management, Institutions, University of Naples Federico II, Italy, where he also teaches Organizational Behavior and Negotiation in Complex Organizations. In 2018 he gained the National qualification as Associate Professor of Organization Studies. He holds a Ph.D. in Management from the University of Naples Federico II, and he has been visiting researcher and assistant lecturer at Cass Business School of London (UK), Copenhagen Business School (Denmark), Adam Smith Business School - University of Glasgow (UK), and Leuphana Universität of Lüneburg (Germany). He gained a post-doc in 2015-2016 at the Department of Economics, Management, Institutions, University of Naples Federico II and a post-doc in 2016-2017 at the National Research Council of Italy, Institute of Research on Innovation and Services for Development. andrea.tomo@unina.it

Aizhan Tursunbayeva (M. Eng, MIS, PhD, Doctor Europaeus, GRP) recently completed a PhD focused on HRIS implementations within complex organisations. She now works as a Senior Project Consultant at KPMG Advisory S.p.A., and tutors the Managing Change course on the MSc in Global eHealth at the University of Edinburgh and Human Resources course at the University of Molise. Her previous professional roles include Global Organizational Development Manager at Giunti Psychometrics, and HR Manager with HSBC Bank Kazakhstan, amongst other managerial positions in Canada, Poland and the UK. E-mail: aizhan.tursunbayeva@gmail.com