

Authors

Elsa Maria Bruni is an Associate Professor of General and Social Education and Chair of the Master's Degree in Pedagogical Sciences at the G. d'Annunzio University of Chieti-Pescara. She works mainly with ancient pedagogy and has published several contributions on the development of cultural and educational processes. She collaborates with national and international scientific journals and her most recent publications include: Achille o dell'educazione razionale (Venice, 2012), Intersezioni pedagogiche (Pisa, 2012), Differenza e pluralismo nel discorso pedagogico (in 25 saggi di pedagogia [Ed. A. Mariani], Milan, 2011), La formazione universitaria nell'Europa della conoscenza (Rome, 2008), Pedagogia e trasformazione della persona (Lecce, 2008).

Loretta Fabbri is Full Professor of Didactics and Organizational Research Methodology at the University of Siena. She is Director of Department of Education, Humanities and Intercultural Communication of Arezzo. She is delegated of the Dean for the Lifelong Learning Activities. Her research field focuses on issues related to participative learning methods and knowledge building in professional communities of practices.

Maria Rosaria Strollo is a Full Professor of General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Naples Federico II and teaches Pedagogy of Learning Processes and Social Education in the degree course in Psychological Sciences and Techniques. She is the Director of the the Epistemology and Practices of Education Laboratory. Since 2004 she has been responsible for the Common Area of the University Federico II "Teaching Interuniversity Specialization School of Campania".

Micaela Donatella Castiglioni is researcher and professor of Lifelong education and adult education, she teaches even General Pedagogy at the University of Milano-Bicocca. Her research concerns the training and self-training in adulthood, with particular respect to the use of narrative, self-reflective and autobiographical practices. Since a few years her attention is given to training of medical and health care professionals inside the framework of Medical Humanities and Narrative Medicine.

Nataliya Pylat is PhD student in Human Mind and Gender Studies - 29° ciclo, Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici - Università degli Studi di Napoli Federico II.

Francesca Bracci is adjunct professor at University of Turin where she teaches Pedagogical consulting: theory, issues and practices. Her scholarly interests are: informal workplace learning; team learning; project-based learning and qualitative research methods.

Enrico Bocciolesi is Assistant Professor of General and Social Pedagogy at eCampus University (Como-Italy), PhD, yet Vice director of the Center for International Research in the Humanities and Social Sciences-Ce.R.I.S.U.S. and responsible for the international relations of the Faculty of Psychology. Coordinator and Italian scientific referee for the international research's about CHAEA. Actually studying and research about critical pedagogy, learning styles, complex education and literacy in collaboration with the UNED (Spain).

Claudio Melacarne is Associate Professor in Social Pedagogy at the University of Siena, Department of Education, Humanities and Intercultural Communication of Arezzo. Delate of the Dean to Continuing Education. His research activities have always been focused on subject matters related to communities of practice and transformative learning processes. In particular, the study of professional and organizational development with a special attention to learning processes and knowledge building within communities of practice.

Carlo Orefice (PhD) is lecturer and researcher at the School of Human Health Sciences of the University of Florence, Italy. His current research and teaching activities within the Medical Education Laboratory are focused on the training of medical and health professionals, with special emphasis on anthropologies of the body and experiences of illness. He obtained the National Academic Qualification as Associate Professor of General and Social Pedagogy on February 2015.

Mario Giampaolo, PhD in Educational Sciences, is assistant professor at the Department of Education, University of Siena. His research focuses are on adult and higher education, personalization of educational services and active methodologies in teaching and learning.